Dear Dean:

This fall marks the first anniversary of the inauguration of our Midcareer Executive Development Course. The success of this program to date has been largely a result of the assistance we have received from distinguished Americans. Your talk last November on the background, problems, and future of NATO and the Atlantic Community was a highlight of our first program.

I wonder if you would be able to talk to the group of thirty intelligence officers now participating in the program designed to broaden their understanding of the Government and of foreign affairs. We would like to have you discuss again the problems and prospects of NATO, and hope that you can speak on Friday, 30 October, at 10:00 a.m. We would like to suggest a talk of about forty-five minutes, a short break, and a thirty-minute question period.

As you are aware, I consider this program one of our major efforts. Therefore I wish to express again my strongest personal hope that you will be able to assist us.

Sincerely,

(Signature) JOHN A. MCCONE
